Extinct Animals Archive Website

Preserving the Past, Inspiring Conservation

Introduction:

- Earth lost many animals throughout history. Remembering them is important for learning from the past and protecting current species.

Project Objective:

- We want to create a website about extinct animals. It will help people learn about them and why they disappeared.

Features and Functionality:

- The website will have a big list of extinct animals with pictures and details.
- You can search and filter animals by type, where they lived, when they disappeared, and why.
- There will be a map to see where the animals used to live.
- You can also find articles and videos to learn more.
- People can add their own information and pictures to help build the website.
- The website will work well on phones and computers.

Target Audience:

- Scientists, teachers, students, and anyone interested in animals and nature.

Technical Implementation:

- We'll use modern technology to make sure the website works well and is safe.

Challenges and Risks:

- Learning while doing can be hard, but we'll find ways to help.
- We might not make money from the website, or we might not finish it.

Infrastructure:

- We're still planning how to set up the website.

Existing Solutions:

- There are other websites about extinct animals, but ours will be special because...

Monetization Strategy:

- We might put ads on the website to make money.

Conclusion:

- We're excited to make this website and hope it will inspire people to care more about animals and nature.
